Tempest Rising

Walker books via Stacy Abrams who has been an editor at Entangled since Dec. 2011

Wolff's first Young Adult, May 2011, book one of three book series

First Person Point of View (Like Blue Moon Rising)

Wolff's 13th book

Note: Tempest Rising was originally called Rip Tide. Wolff announced the name change to Tempest Rising in her blog November 17, 2010, the same day Kim received the full Blue Moon Rising manuscript. The first 3 chapters, called a “submission” were given to Kim October 2, 2010.

Note: Tempest Rising like Blue Moon Rising, is the story of a girl from California who thinks she's human but discovers she is supernatural. She comes into her powers on her 17th birthday and will shift to her supernatural form. Her life is in danger. She's been kept ignorant of the supernatural world and her role in it. Alaska is mentioned for the first time by Wolff (Tempest Unleashed book 2), as well as the Bermuda Triangle, Hawaii, and Hawaiian. Polynesian is introduced in her second book of the series and is also in BMR as is the word “Eskimo.” Romantic lead rides a black Ducati motorcycle and has a “clean scent.” The heroine's mother is a “high priestess,” but she didn't know it, and an artist who paints. Heroine grew up ignorant of the supernatural world and her mother's role in it. The secondary love interest has long “ebony” hair; tattoos on his arms and chest in strange symbols. There's a leather necklace. All of these facts are in common with Blue Moon Rising 2010 and 2011 versions.

Note: Tempest Unleashed is book 2 in the series, and just like the Blue Moon Rising 2011 version, the heroine is now specifically from San Diego. The third book in the series is an audiobook and not transcribed yet.
